

There is no conceivable public benefit that can result from a consolidation of media. Congress must work to support a diversity of media outlets, opinions, and organizations - not a diminution. The public depends upon your strong opposition to the proposed FCC rule change.